In gorgeous hues is drest. I think of thee, when night Spreads darkness o'er the land, And clothes all things in sable hue, With such a lavish hand.

I think of thee, when Spring Is decked in May's sweet flowers, And think thee fairer than all they That bloom in Flora's bowers.

I think of thee, when Summer Makes " field and forest " fair : But never think it has such charms As can with thine compare.

When Autumn brings the ripe red fruit, Upon each loaded tree, And bird, and beast, and man are g'ad, Then do I think of thee.

When Winter sternly frowns, And his cold aspect freezes, E'en thes, fair one, I think of thee, The thought fond memory pleases.

I think of thee, in every hour, 'Mid pleasure or 'mid pain, Thy name a cherished souvenir, I'll ne'er forget again.

And I'll still foudly think of thee, At morning's dawn and even; And if on earth we meet no more, Oh! may we meet in heaven.
